Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to apply for a Warehouse, Logistics, Production, or General Worker position within your company. I am currently based in Berlin, Germany, and I am available to start immediately.

I am a reliable, hardworking, and responsible person with a strong work ethic and a positive attitude. I work well as part of a team, follow instructions carefully, and adapt quickly to new working environments and procedures. I am comfortable working in busy environments and understand the importance of punctuality, accuracy, safety, and teamwork.

I am interested in tasks such as picking, packing, sorting, order fulfillment, shipping and receiving, inventory support, production, and general warehouse activities. I am also flexible regarding working hours and willing to work shifts, weekends, public holidays, and overtime when required.

In addition to my practical skills, I have good general computer and Internet knowledge, as well as experience with Microsoft Excel, Microsoft Office, WordPress, email, and online tools. I am comfortable learning new digital systems and workplace processes, which can be useful in modern warehouse and logistics environments.

I speak fluent English and native Hindi, and my German is currently at A2 level, with B1 preparation in progress. I am actively improving my German and am motivated to communicate effectively with colleagues and supervisors.

I would appreciate the opportunity to contribute to your team and demonstrate my reliability, flexibility, and willingness to learn. I am available for an interview at your convenience and can start work immediately.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,
Rajesh Kumar
